WHETHER responding to threats of planning how to secure flood victims at emergency Cabinet meetings, Jesse Robredo made a move up looking no cost in tsinelas (rubber slipper). The image defined him, and Energy Secretary Risa Hontela, speaking at a technological seminar for the last secretary of the Interior in Malacanan on Sunday night, called it Robredo's "tsinelas brand of leadership."

It was the last night of the state vigil for Robredo in the Palace and members of the Cabinet gave their departed colleague a story, song, film, tribute before his family took his body back to his hometown in Iloilo.

Fewer Pinoy listing up to vote-Comelec

AT THE eve of the registration for the 2013 elections of overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) is going, the Commission on Elections said it might not be able to meet its target one million overseas absentee voters by October.

Comelco Commissioner Luciano Tagle, chair of the commission on overseas absentee voting (OAV), said the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) reported that only 212,889 OFWs had signed up in addition to the 380,430 absentee voters who had registered for the 2010 presidential elections.

The OAV registration for next year's polls began in November last year. It will end on Oct. 31.

"At this time, our conservative estimate is that we may reach only some 550,000 registered voters, or less than one million," said Tagle.

The commissioner said the challenge lay behind the OAV could attract more OFWs if the process were made easier for them such as by allowing them to vote via the Internet, which could only be made possible through legislation.

"We have been lobbying for an Internet voting law but until now there is none," said Tagle.

In the absence of such a law, the official said the poll body was working to expand the use of the precinct count optical scan (PCOS) machines to other foreigner voter posts such as those in Singapore and Hong Kong. — Arnold R. Uy

Ramon Magsaysay awardees arrive for rites

By Justin Arling

Five distinguished Asians who won this year's Ramon Magsaysay Award arrived in Manila yesterday ahead of the awarding ceremonies on Friday at the Philippine International Convention Center.

Binondo Francis of India and Teo Yu Suan (Ramon of Bangladesh, together, it with their spouses, arrived on board Singapore Airlines Flight 610, 9:10 a.m. via Agaña International Airport from Los Angeles. It arrived 1:30 p.m.

Francis is being recognized for "his visionary work, his profound belief in community energies, and his sustained programs in pursuing the holistic economic empowerment of thousands of women and their families in rural India."

"People are powerful and they can be important resources in creating change," Francis told Ramon Magsaysay Foundation officials and journalists who welcomed him.

In his year, Francis seemed to be still grappling with the surprise of getting the award. "I know what the award but I didn't expect it comes in," he said.

Judicial services

She is being cited for "her vision, pioneering courage and impassioned leadership in a compromised judicial system in Bangladesh that affirms the people's right to a good environment as nothing less than their right to dignity and life."

The Taiwanese awarded, Chen Shu-jin, arrived on board China Airlines Flight 61-790 from Taipei at around 3:30 p.m. She was accompanied by three officials from the Taiwan Foreign Ministry and the Taiwan County government.

Chen is being recognized for "her passion about her personal growth, which reflects a deep, consistent, quiet conviction, and her transformed the lives of the numerous Taiwanese she has helped."

Dr. Tang Tsing-Ren from Cambodia and Andreana Kewadigara from Indonesia arrived on Israeli flight 66-110 at around 4 p.m. Home was accompanied by Thai Air, program coordinator of the Cambodian Center for Study and Development in Agriculture, Kewadigara's wife and 5-year-old daughter were with him.

Home is being recognized for "his creative fusion of practical science and collective will that has inspired and enabled vast numbers of farmers in Cambodia to become more responsible and productive contributors to their country's economic growth."

Recipients will be cited for "his sustained advocacy for community-based natural resource management in Indonesia, leading bold campaigns to stop illegal forest exploitation, as well as break social enterprise chains that corrupt the forest communities and the poor."

Philips awarded

The sixth awardee is a Filipino, Rodelio Derville, plant pathologist, entomologist and retired professor of the University of the Philippines-Los Baños College of Agriculture.

Derville is being honored for "his creative vision in placing the power and insights of science in the hands of farmers in the Philippines, who have consequently multiplied their yields, created productive learning communities, and rediscovered the dignity of their labor."

The awardees are scheduled to speak in several forums and be guests at various events in days before and after the awarding ceremonies.

The winners will receive a certificate, a medal and the Ramon Magsaysay Award Foundation has been giving recognition to outstanding individuals for their selfless service in uplifting the lives of millions in Asia.

Communication skills training

According to Mylene Ingle, the BCC and ME work hand in hand to provide communication skills training to those who want to join the business process outsourcing (BPO) sector, including the call center industry.

The local SPG industry is hiring 70,000 to 120,000 people every year, said Jojo Uyigao, executive director and corporate secretary of CCME.

The problem is that many of them lack the communication skills," Myer said.

"They may know the skills for the position, and they may really be good. But first and foremost, how can you get the job without your current handle yourself during interviews? You just have to be able to get the job that you want, you have to be able to present yourself [well], that's often, applicants screw up once they start talking during these interviews," Zilber said.

"That's why we created the foundation. It's for those who don't have the means to pay for the living or fuel. We're now working on subsidizing the transportation and even the meals of those who really need it. Because for some of them, merely getting to the school is a problem," he said, adding that most of their scholars are from a jobless area.

Upon completion of the training, the students are selected to call various and other NGO companies.

"We support them from the start of the training until they get hired. We have call centers people coming here to interview them," he added, saying that many of their students have been employed by multinational corporations.

Indy said he decided to stay in the Philippines because it gave him a chance to help and "make small positive changes for others in need," besides being with his wife and children.

"Although life in the Philippines can be very frustrating for the economist, I don't have any regrets. I hope to use my experience in business and set up a system or an NGO that will help many more people have a better future than they have right now. I think education is the key to getting there," he stressed.

HEROISM GOES AWRY

PMA cadet shot in robbery

By Joannette L. Andrade

A GRADUATING cadet of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) was reported to be in critical condition after he was shot in the neck when he tried to stop a robber inside a passenger jeepney in Quezon City around noon the other day.

Alfonso Reyes, 23, a first class cadet of the premier military academy and a son of Vice President Moynihan, was under observation at the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Hospital.

The police said they were looking for the robbers who escaped after he shot Reyes. The still unidentified man fled with the victim's PMA bag.

Reyes was supposed to be one of the cadets assigned to serve as protectors in yesterday's PMA anniversary celebrations in Makati.

In a report, Quezon City Police District Fourteen station chief Insp. Virginia Dela Cruz said that at noon on Saturday, the victim was inside a passenger jeepney on the corner of Tandang Sora and Marikina Avenue in Barangay Greater Lungs when a man took out a red .45 Smith and Wesson and fired.

As he started shooting at someone passing by her belongings, Reyes tackled him and tried to take his gun away from him.

The witness however, shot him in the neck with the bullet exiting through the victim's back. As Reyes fell, the second man took the bag and ran to his jeepney and fled.

The driver of the passenger jeepney, Benito R. Rola, immediately brought the wounded cadet to Barrow General Hospital where he was given first aid before he was taken to AFP Hospital.

Taberna 12th in Taiwan golf

APRIL—Miguel Taberna tied his best month of 4-under-par 68 rounds to finish 12th in the final leg of the 2012 Taiwan Open Championship won by Chinese Taipei's Hsiao Chieh-yen by three strokes with 18 under 217 total. The 37-year-old Taberna, who turned pro early this year, had earlier finished at 36-odd 73 and 65-under 182 total. He won $1,500 in the $10,000 tournament playing on the richest island of the Asian Development Tour. Last season Taberna also closed with 68 and earned up to $1,500 at 204. Jose Alvarado led 205 at 204 and Jay Byrnes ended at 205. Asian Development Tour

Jollibee owner ventures into property dev't

Tan Caktiong teams up with Sia family of 'Mang Inasal' fame

By Dora C. Sandoz

FASTFOOD chain magnate Jey Tan Caktiong and entrepreneur Edgar "Inay" Sia II have teamed up on the property development business that they envision to be one of the country's biggest property developers by 2020.

The two have formed a joint venture firm, Jollibee Properties Corp., to create two commercial, residential and mixed-use into public-private partnership (PPP) projects. Sia, the company's chairman and chief executive officer, said the joint venture company was developing a plan to submit on the Philippine Stock Exchange "when the right time comes." Jollibee Properties was previously known as Jollibee Land Corp., which started in 2009 as a wholly owned subsidiary of the holding company Jollibee Investments Inc. Recently, Tan Caktiong's Jollibee Holdings acquired 50 percent of the LOCAL sentiment is seen remaining cautious and vulnerable to offshore developments this week as local values are seen possible on results and volume drying.

Last week, the main index (Philippine Stock Exchange Index) declined by 0.5 points or 1.25 percent to end at 59.49 on Aug. 24, 2012. There were only two days of trading for the week.

Local foreign markets are also steady as the nation's overseas "Barangay Day."

"The market will likely fluctuate for this week as it continues to digest last week's negative developments," said PSEI Research Analysts Chief Marlyn Lumbana. "There may be technical rallies but the general direction will be sideways to the short term."

Santo de Oro Securities Strategist Jonathan Peralta said the PSE would likely close between 5.95 and 6.00 this week.

Gov't eyes further extension of LRT 1

By Paolo G. Manzano

PLANS are being drawn up to extend the Light Rail Transit (LRT) line further south until Dasmariñas, Cavite, as the government tries to keep up with mass transit requirements in Metro Manila and nearby provinces.

"Comprehensive Inventory Map Route II and a feasibility study on the project was set to be started this year to see whether it would make sense to have another station in Dasmariñas instead of ending the LRT line in New City, Cavite."

"There are a lot of people that go all the way to Dasmariñas, so that's being studied," he said.

He said plans for Dasmariñas would not interfere with the current bidding for the LRT extension from Balintawak to Alabang.

"The LRT line 1 extension project, which would cost P40 billion to be split between the government and the private sector, is the most expensive infrastructure project in the Aquino administration's pipeline."

"We're studying this [Dasmariñas extension] because we don't want to waste time. If we approve the project, then we can easily add it to the line extension," Peralta said.

He said the government would not wait for the Aquino extension to be completed before deciding on the Dasmariñas project. He said it would be harder to build all the way to Dasmariñas after the Aquino extension has been completed.

Government sources said the DOJ would like to enter the contract with the Meta Pacific group—which originally won the auction shortly before the 1999 administration took over—to make more revenue for the government. The contract was supposed to expire in 2011 to improve the government's share when FSN took over but apparently at least will be unassignable to the Office of the President, which has not asked the attorney general for the contract.

However, it was up to the Office of the President to decide to simply conduct the contract for the working environment call for a working DOP's group also has the option of going to court but it was not likely would gain a substantial victory in the government sector.

If the government takes the latter view, it opens up the opportunity for the fiscus—the Sanfilippo group of Samueli C. Ang.—to take a second stake in SCTV. In fact, MVP's group on Manila North Tollways Corp. was denied and the sole eligible bidder for SCTV is private ally and Norwalk Highway Management in joint venture between San Filippa Corp. and San Tollways Corp.) was declared short of the technical requirements.

But while a rebuilding of MDTs may be good for San Miguel, the FREN regime's strategy of many infrastructure-building contracts prior to its term may also affect BNC. For instance, the DOF has also won IDIC's Metro Railway Train as a project from Edo-Quiroz Ave. to Mila con Church in the downtown district. — Frank C. Insua

DOE bidding out hydro site contracts in Q4

Terms of reference seen completed within third quarter

By Amy G. Reyes

THE DEPARTMENT OF Energy (DOE) is busy pushing through with its plan to bid out within the fourth quarter at least 40 prospective sites for hydroelectric power.

Marco Manalang, director of the Renewable Energy Management Bureau of the DOE, said they were now in the thick of preparation for the upcoming bidding, which could be the largest single offering of small hydroelectric projects in the private sector to date.

Manalang told reporters that the DOE was expecting to finalize the bidding series of activities within the third quarter of 2012, which would allow them to start the bidding before the end of the year.

What makes these small hydroelectric projects more attractive to prospective investors, according to Manalang, is that they come with feasibility studies that were prepared by the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA). Based on what JICA has done, the power projects, which are located in Ilocos and Visayas, have completed 60 to 70 percent of the work.

However, he said further studies might still be needed on the projects.

The DOE has been optimistic of being able to draw enough private interest in the service contracts for the operation and development of these hydro sites.

Energy Undersecretary Jose M. Laya, Jr. earlier said the planned bidding would be governed after the previous bidding conducted under the Philippine Energy Contracting Board, in which companies would be submitting offers that would be judged based on their technical and financial work proposals.

"Although the feasibility target set by the government is just 200 MW for the development of hydroelectricity in the last three years, these service contracts are all still in the predevelopment stage and will not entail involving more bids. Under these contracts, private companies will still need to conduct a two-year feasibility study to determine whether the flow of the river is sufficient for their projects," Laya explained.

As of the end of July this year, the DOE has awarded 120 service contracts for hydroelectric projects with estimated capacity of 2,300 MW.

There are 140 pending applications for hydroelectric projects that are generating another 1,800 MW of power.

Review of PH poverty reduction goal sought

By Amy G. Reyes

THE GOVERNMENT should review its poverty reduction target when updating the country's economic blueprint.

The Philippine Development Plan (PDP) for 2011 to 2016 is an "action plan," according to the Department of Development, secretary of the Department of the Philippines.

However, he said that "the assumption for its success remains high with an expected (annual) growth of 7 to 8 percent to achieve poverty alleviation targets."

The PDP targets to decrease income growth of 7 to 8 percent and the achievement of the Millennium Development Goal of halving poverty incidence from 21.1 percent in 1990 to 10 percent by 2015.

PSALM prepares for next attempt to sell 4 power barges

By Amy R. Brown

HOUSTON—Three failed attempts, state-level power buyers and Laidlaw Management Corp. continued here in selling four 100,000-hp power barges to a bid from Laidlaw Management Corp.

PSALM has to sell the barges to meet funds that are to be used to pay for the barges.

In a recent message, PSALM president and chief executive officer, John L. Laidlaw, said that the presentation of Power Barges 301, 302, 303 and 304 was completed by the Electric Power Industry Forum, Inc. (EPIF), which noted that PSALM must provide all required power assets.

"PSALM has to sell the power barges in compliance with EPIF. We have to find ways to pay down our debt and bring down the interest charges. Financing the barges will only be a short-term solution," Laidlaw said.

Under existing procedures, PSALM can also pay off the barges after by holding another bid or by selling the barges to a private company.

"The failure of the recent negotiations was noted reported to members of the PSALM board. The PSALM board will continue work to close down the next steps to be taken for the presentation of the power barges," Laidlaw said.

To recall, the first bidding for the barges which was held in May this year failed because only one offer was submitted. The last bid came from Asia Power Corp., a joint venture between the Asia Group's 40, George 1440 and TransAsia 60, and Energy Development Corp. (EDC).

The second bidding was held earlier this month, but was also declared a failure after receiving only one offer, this time from TransAsia 60. Immediately after the declaration of a failure, PSALM started negotiations with TransAsia 60 for the sale of Power Barges 301, 302, 303 and 304.

As failed as TransAsia's offer was, it was below the reserve price. But, should other bids come in, it would be higher than the reserve price. The Philippines, which also declined to accept the reserve price during the negotiations, had offered P41.82 million for Power Barges 301 and 302, P31 million for Power Barges 3 and 303, and P22 million for Power Barges 304 and 305.

The failure to sell these barges may impact the expected critical power situation in Mindanao for summer of next year. The government is planning a 200-megawatt power supply that will be used to meet the demand.

The government has been looking for these power barges, which can reach a maximum 32,000, to provide the much needed additional power supply in Mindanao by 2015.

growth in 2011.

"The first year (2011) was much better. The year looks better but the global economic situation is still not that positive as I think they should do a recovery, particularly in the power sector," he said.

The country grew by only 0.9 percent in 2011. In the last quarter this year, however, the country grew by 0.4 percent.

The Aquino administration has very good priority programs such as the conditional cash transfer and the national broadband, he said.

"The priority programs are very good but I think the poverty reduction goal is not realistic as it is based on 7 to 8 percent growth. Maybe some other intervention might be important to do," he said.

According to Asia Development Bank's Asia Outlook for Asia and the Pacific 2012, the Philippines is among the countries that are not meeting the goal of reducing extreme poverty.

Labor Data Institute National System of Accounts (LDA-NSA) shows the poverty incidence among families rose to 24.4 percent in 2009, down from 20.1 percent in 2008. The share fell from 1.000 Philippine families rose from 100 to 100 in 2008 and 2009.

The National Research and Development Authority said it would conduct a study to identify the factors that are hindering economic development.

Smart says 3G frequency price is fair

'Our floor price should be P12B'

By Paolo G. Manalo

DOMESTIC carrier Smart Communications Inc. said it would be glad to give up the 3G frequency (3G) mobile frequency held by unit subsidiary United Telecom (UT) to the government.

But the company that carries more than half of industry revenues said it chose to be part of the 3G frequency at a steep discount as a sign of goodwill to the government, which aims to maintain competition in the country's deregulated telecommunications.

Smart, the mobile arm of Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. (PLDT), is selling a net economy 3G (N3G) of P12.2 billion for its 3G frequency. The amount represents the investment the company made to allow Gais to use 3G services.

PLDT is confident that price with Thailand, where there is a 3G frequency bidding going on, the floor price there is equivalent to P1.2 billion per megahertz (MHz). Smart president and CEO Stephen Sarmiento said on Tuesday.

"We are giving up 15 MHz and we are not taking more than P12 billion," he said. "Our price is really very low."

Sarmiento said the PLDT bid also got a "fully supported" by subscribers from PLDT's national financial institutions over the past five years, covering the credit facilities that the company has been using for frequency.

The intent to give up the frequency was to comply with a condition set by the government when PLDT's acquisition of the San Felipe mobile band was approved by regulators, including the Data Bureau, the PLDT group was given four 3G frequency in the country.

Sarmiento said the condition that the company's 3G would not be assumed by the National Telecommunications Commission, saying that the company had been able to comply with the price for the mobile 3G unit. A 3G frequency allows a mobile service provider to offer high-speed wireless broadband Internet service.

The NTC is expected to come out with a floor bid price for the 3G frequency, or the minimum amount investors should be willing to pay if they wanted to be awarded the license.

The floor price will reflect Smart's 3G, if approved, and as Smart's government thinks it should get the allowing the use of state-owned radio frequency.

Given their deep pockets, PLDT mobile 3G license and industry revenues of P10 billion, controlled by San Miguel Corp., are the only to enter in with the 3G frequency. Both firms have expressed their desire to bid for the frequency. Smart's plan to bid for the 3G frequency and NTC are also expected to bid for the frequency.

PHILIPPINE Smart Foundation founder Cesar Manansala speaks during the foundation's 20th anniversary at Marikina Church in Marikina. Smart Communications emphasized PLDT's contribution to the country's national development through innovative programs that help address the digital divide.

Modernization program pushes Globe capex to P11.7B in first 6 months

GLOBAL Globe Telecom and associated operations efforts pushed in first-half capital expenditures (capex) to P11.7 billion on July 31, 2011, the highest for the company to date in its growth push, as it accelerates modernization and 4G LTE network program.

Globe capex spending in the second half is projected to hit P12 billion, the highest for the company to date in its growth push, as it accelerates modernization and 4G LTE network program.

Smart is committed to network and 4G modernization with its goal of P12 billion was set aside for various investments in 4G LTE, 3G, 2G, and 4G LTE network program.

"Our network modernization program is on track and is being rolled out gradually to the country," said Sarmiento. "We are not going to be late in this."

Lopez solar raises stake in solar sector

By Amy R. Norio

THE LUPRINCO from Philip Group plans to increase its investments in the solar power industry by installing solar units in Batangas and Cebu that are now greenhouses and banana plantations.

Data from the Department of Energy showed that the high solar capacity, through the subsidiary Philco Philco Solar, is working against the trend of solar power in the Philippines.

According to a DOE report, Philco Solar is looking to put up the 0.15-megawatt (MW) solar plant in Batangas. The company also plans to invest in a 0.15-MW solar plant in Cebu.

Based on data from the report, Philco Solar is an end-user and provider of solar PV systems that generate electricity from solar panels.

In December 2010, Philco Solar Solar Power Project, and the 0.15-MW solar plant in Batangas, is looking to put up the 0.15-MW solar plant in Cebu.

Gov't targets P2.22-M cut in annual power bill

THE GOVERNMENT expects to save an additional P2.22 million, once the Dept. of Energy completes the "restructuring" of 12 state-owned electric and water utilities.

In a statement, the DOE said it agreed to an agreement with some utilities, to be completed by the end of the year.

Under the agreement, the utilities will be required to reduce their electricity bills by P2.22 million.

DESIGNING the competitiveness of the Philippine economy in 2008, some DOE representatives from various business groups and the private sector identified the top reasons of non-competitiveness in the Philippines.

They said the highest impediment to the competitiveness of the Philippine economy is the high cost of electricity.

Dimensione

commissions 8 Filipino

artists to reinterpret

Finish designer Eero

Aarnio's whimsical

canine creation

By Alex T. Purgas

THE CITIES of Chicago, Sweden and Singapore have done a before: tapping different artists to jazz up animal figures such as cows, pigs and even lions. Even Ogino, this paper's mascot, has been reinterpreted by various Filipino artists.

But it never fails every time, especially when your canvas is as cute and as iconic as this one.

Dimensione, led by owner Ben Chan, recently commissioned eight Filipino artists to dress up the iconic Maigat Wonder Puppy.

The eight artists, two of whom are artists, are: Maigat Wonder Puppy (Singapore Design Center), Maigat Wonder Puppy (Singapore Design Center), Maigat Wonder Puppy (Singapore Design Center), Maigat Wonder Puppy (Singapore Design Center), Maigat Wonder Puppy (Singapore Design Center), Maigat Wonder Puppy (Singapore Design Center), Maigat Wonder Puppy (Singapore Design Center), and Maigat Wonder Puppy (Singapore Design Center).

These marks, created by Maigat Wonder Puppy, are now on display at Dimensione's flagship store at Maigat Wonder Puppy.

In case a puppy makes you think you are like him, but he's better, as all right one of a kind animals can be seen.

Should your favorite for sale, you can still enjoy viewing it up-close. All right one of a kind animals can be seen.

BEDSIDE READING

CIELITO HABITO

Former American planning secretary; top-60 columnist ('The New Leader')

There are the books currently on my bedside for leisurely reading.

1. On top of my pile is a small book I picked up at an airport bookstore, by Gerald R. McDermott, titled The Fall or Pocket Guide to World Religions.

What books are they reading?

CIELITO HABITO

grote (What Every Christian Should Know); as I've been keen to understand the other major faiths and how they all adapt to one another, especially what we all have in common.

2. I've recently started to reading Robert L. Lytle and John L. Dabney's Tradition, which I never get to finish the first time around, for its use of the last perspective on everyday communion.

3. I'm also reading "The Music of Glass and Diamond: The Morning Glory '18," which my daughter gave me for my birthday, as the radio program has been part of my morning life. It's worth noting, it gives the physics to exercise my imagination inside me in a subtle.

RAMON FAROLAN

Retired music general of the Philippine Air Force; top-60 columnist ('World')

I'm reading "Bright Shining Star" by Neil Munro and "The" by Thomas E. Ryan.

"We have more than 100 years of music history. It's a great example of the greatest examples of human and contemporary. It's not just history for history."

Instituto Cervantes pays tribute to Luis Buñuel

BOGOTÓ Correo de Manila and the Instituto Cervantes in the Philippines pay tribute to the achievements of Spanish director Luis Buñuel by showcasing a retrospective of his cinematic creations every Saturday for the whole month of September.

Titled "Luis Buñuel in Mexico," the special issue explores the roots of the director, considered one of the greatest of all time.

Spanish-born Buñuel, who worked with Federico Delon on his first film, "The Three Coins" (1931), the director (1906-1983), and his films have shaped generations ever since. He fled to the US during the Spanish Civil War and moved to Mexico in the late '40s, where he lived and worked until death in 1983.

All screenings on Spanish with English subtitles will be held at Instituto Cervantes' Salda de films every Sunday, 8 p.m.

The film cycle opens Sept. 1 with "Buñuel," a biopic study of the life of the director. It was the Grand Prix International at the 1960 Cannes Film Festival. The movie follows the story of a priest attempting to live a pure and honest life, only to be driven to the margins of society by the church and the state.

Screening on Sept. 8 is the 1951 film "The Exile," about a father who abandons his daughter after his adulterous wife's death. The film is a study of the director's life and his relationship with his daughter. It was the Grand Prix International at the 1951 Cannes Film Festival.

Screening on Sept. 15 is the 1950 film "The Exile," about a father who abandons his daughter after his adulterous wife's death. The film is a study of the director's life and his relationship with his daughter. It was the Grand Prix International at the 1951 Cannes Film Festival.

Argentine Jorge Canale's art branches out to the Philippines in 'Rizoma'

We Live It. Follow Us.

ARIZENTINE, ARCHITECT-artist Jorge Casale has attempted to put on canvas the "thermodynamic" philosophy of French philosopher Gilles Deleuze and Félix Guattari, knowingly pitting the free-flowing ambience of the visual arts with the rigid, highly hierarchic and controlled discipline of architecture.

The result is "Museum," collage in mixed technique works, which will be exhibited starting Aug. 31, as part of the Director's Choice section of the Seattle Museum.

Catano, who is also a writer, started his "Waxman" series in 2009. He drew the inspiration from the Rhizome concept developed by Deleuze and Guattari in their book A Thousand Plateaus: Capitalism and Schizophrenia (1980), a key reading in university courses on Poststructuralism and Postmodernism.

"Wander" and "Wandering" are notions, or new philosophical concepts, that the philosopher Deleuze (1925-1995) and psychoanalyst Guattari (1928-1992) developed together to consider what they perceived to be the shared and authoritative heart of modernism.

"We call a 'platonic' any multiplicity not related to other multiplicities by superficial underground systems in which a map or a vector the distance," they write in "Platonism and Platonism." "We are writing this book as a criticism. It is composed of elements."

Yucca is drawn from history; it refers to a horizontal stem, a root or tuber such as ginger and potato, usually underground, often covered with leaves or hair.

Delmon and Dussan continue the discussion with "arborescence," another botanical term that denotes hierarchical growth, from root to trunk, branch and leaf.

According to Debra and Gauri, a Marxist mode of thought characterizes the paid narration on hierarchy and class systems of capitalist, modern society.

Hearing such grand narratives and argument-diskings are ethnomath ways of thinking, which are exploratory narrative activities, and not theories or ideologies.

'Tired all times'

"We're tired of grass," writes Holmes and Granger. "We should stop believing moss, roots and raindrops. They're made to suffer too much. All of subconscious culture is founded on them, from biology to linguistics. Nothing is beautiful or boring or polite outside from underground/moss and several roots, adventurous growths and the system."

Journal of Management Education 32(1)

Delmas and Guadalupe worry that as bureaucracy has dominated Mayan's thinking, it is hegemonic and institutionalizes bureaucracy and "authoritarianism."

Cande vividly explains the classroom approach through collages and mixed media. According to the "Notes" section, the series is "an anthology of unbuttoned and highly dramatic situations. The words attempt to reflect this personal thought in the chosen techniques and materials of the collage method."

The distinct marks, at first blush, seem to employ the acrylic-dip technique, so-called Indian Pollock. They seem to have been made with the brush.

Mathematically, however, the digging appears to have resulted in a very controlled flow of particles to the container.

On the face of the matter seem straightforward. The works also want to have employed "upshaking and 'windfiring,'" that is, making things with legs so as to heat the typography of

Whereas the "Economic" sector has evolved and continues to undergo rapid change, the "Ecological" sector is experiencing stagnation. Canada appears to have frozen the domestic and inter-himself, starting and ending everywhere. He seems to be making a hasty movement warning against the dissolution of the movement.

Of course, this is a conjecture since "humanism" is defined in great modern physics

Thus, in exploring the artistic dimensions of dramatic thinking, Tanabe seems to be challenging the highly controlled, "authoritative" steps of an education, in which dogmatic rules recognize formal rules and linear rules.

Second, in mounting his show in the Philippines, Canale accidentally—or is it adventurously?—may be making a fortune. (The postmodernists would say "Telemonopoly") to the shared authoritarian history of Argentina and the Philippines, which was characterized by the building of grand edifices, grand myths, and "grand nationalities." It is no accident that, for the Western media, the most famous Argentine in Elita Pasion and the most famous Filipino is Imelda Marcos.

Four Filipinos join The Summit of Genius

THE PHILIPPINES is sending two of its young brilliant minds, all students below the age of 20 from the University of the Philippines-Los Baños, majoring in Applied Physics, to participate in the Asian Science Camp, considered as the most important scientific encounter in the world for promoting young scientists from all over Asia and the Pacific.

The students are John Kenti Srirangar, Magali, Sheryl Aguirre (English), Jose Angeles Beland, Elina, and Nicole Dwyanghling Obayra. They will be joined by their faculty adviser, Lou Bonafant.

The science camp, also known as "The Summit of Genius," has been held for six years and hosted in a different Asian country every year. The camp is an initiative of a number of United Peace Laureates in the Sciences from various Asia who set for themselves the goal of creating a platform for locating and promoting the future association of scientists from these Asia.

Some 300 young violin prodigies from all over Asia are expected to attend the camp to be held in Jerusalem during the last week of August. Israeli President Shimon Peres will grace the opening ceremonies on Aug. 26.
